

SOUND AIR RAID WARNINGS OVER PARTS OF SCOTLAND

Appearance of Unidentified
Aircraft Causes Considerable Alarm

NO RAIDS REPORTED

No Bombs Were Reported As Having Been Dropped

(By International News Service)

LONDON, Oct. 20.—Appearance of unidentified aircraft, presumably German, over the Firth of Forth, and other parts of Scotland, caused the air-raid sirens to sound over large areas of the British Isles today. No raid was carried out, however.

An official announcement said:

"Precautionary measures were taken when unidentified aircraft appeared over the Firth of Forth this morning.

"No bombs were reported dropped. The warnings were sounded about 11 a. m., and the 'all-clear' signal was given within an hour."

In addition to Edinburgh and elsewhere in Scotland, the warnings were sounded in the south of England. The south of England warning was believed sounded in error. No aircraft were seen.

In Edinburgh and elsewhere there was a mix-up in signals. Shortly after the first warning had been given, a faulty siren gave a premature "all-clear" signal. Civilians poured into the streets, only to rush back to shelter when another general warning was sounded. Many Edinburgh residents refused to enter the shelter, but lingered in the streets in the hope of seeing aerial dog-fights, as planes of the Royal Air Force headed northward.

During the alarm, members of the Royal Air Force guarded the swastika-shrouded coffin of two German aviators killed in Monday's raid. They were buried this afternoon from St. Philip's Church, Portobello, near Edinburgh.

Tells of Development Of The Tobacco Industry

Dr. Lindsay Troxler, a tobacco company representative, was the guest speaker yesterday afternoon when the Rotary Club held its regular weekly meeting at the Elks' Home. His subject was: "From a Weed to an Industry."

A good attendance of local Rotarians and guests from the Jenkintown club and also three boys from the Fallsington High School were on hand to hear the very interesting discussion of the development of the tobacco industry.

Dr. Troxler stated that Columbus found the Indians using tobacco when he came to America. In 1564 the manufacture of tobacco was begun in New England. At that time tobacco was used in England only as a medicine.

The speaker also mentioned the three main kinds of tobacco, the Havana, Turkish and American.

"Today, in this country, the majority of the people indulge in the use of tobacco for sociability, relaxation, pleasure and enjoyment," Dr. Troxler declared.

What happens from the time the tobacco seed is planted until it is made into a cigarette at a modern factory was also outlined by the speaker.

"Last year it was estimated that the United States used slightly over 163 billion cigarettes—a number, which if stacked end to end, would reach to the moon and back twenty times."

The government tax on every pack of cigarettes is six cents and in Pennsylvania there is an additional State tax of two cents.

"One large manufacturer uses $1500 worth of revenue stamps daily," Troxler said.

"The total direct taxes last year paid by the industry were estimated at $91 millions of dollars."

The particular description of the manufacture of a cigarette was given by Dr. Troxler.

Following his talk members asked questions and each member present received a package of cigarettes.

"Home-Work" Is Discussed By P. T. A. at Cornwells

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 20.—A study group presented in excellent manner last evening for benefit of Cornwells Parent-Teacher Association, the subject of "Home-work."

At the meeting, held in the high school auditorium, Miss Rae Komen- arski, who was in charge of the study, and John Larson, took up the subject for grades one to six; Mrs. Robert Reed and Axel Kleinsorg, grades seven to nine; and Mrs. Call and Anson Hamm, grades 10 to 12.

John Bixler, vice-president, took charge of the business meeting, with Mrs. George Reimer leading in group singing, with Miss Isabelle McCoy at the piano.

Reports of Southeastern District, P. T. A., of Pennsylvania, in conference at Reading last week were made by Mrs. Blossch and Miss Komenarski. They brought back to Bensalem the honor certificate for work accomplished by the local association during the past year.

Franklin Myers announced the foot- ball game here today between New- town and Bensalem; and told of the fine merits of the squad this term.

"The Bensalem Club" presented a preview of "Little Women" which will be staged next month. Miss Jane Kohler was in charge, with the fol- lowing participating: Meg, Frances Stuhl- trager; Jo, Edna May Vansant; John Brook, Marshall Cleaver; Aunt March, Gladys Cragg.

Miss Helen Smith conducted a sale of cakes and candy for benefit of the Girls' Leader Club.

DANCING FRIDAY NIGHT

Free Meals

(By "The Stroller")

Many a time have we watched as cats and dogs followed butcher wagons about, and recently saw one cat calmly sitting beneath a milk wagon, evidently hoping that by some miracle a bottle might fall and break.

But today a trio of cats followed a fish truck down Buckley street, and when a stop was made, one waited patiently under the truck, and two sat facing the rear opening, a few feet in back of the vehicle, evidently anticipating some fish heads.

Two tots, not much more than babes, also watched proceedings of the fish-man, but we imagine theirs was more interest than anticipation.

Defines Executive Order

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 20.—America's territorial waters may run 320 or 1000 miles out to sea, President Roosevelt said today in defining his executive order barring belligerent submarines from United States ports.

As he entered his Hyde Park home for the week-end, the President placed a plain differential between subma- rines and belligerent surface vessels.

Any effort to compare merchantmen to submarines, said the President, was like comparing apples to pears.

The two types of craft definitely come into two distinct categories, Mr. Roosevelt declared. The neutrality act so defines them.

Any submarine that comes into American waters, asserted the Pres- ident, should rise to the surface and show its periscope.

To Support Finland

London, Oct. 20.—Sweden and Nor- way have taken military measures to assure Finland that their promises of support against any Soviet encroach- ment mean more than mere words, the London Daily Herald reported today.

The paper said eight Swedish divi- sions were dispatched to Norrland, within 200 miles of the Finnish-Soviet border, while Norrland troops manned both inland and coastal defenses at the extreme north of Lapland.

Dr. Juho Paasikivi, special Finnish emissary, will return to Moscow to- morrow night to continue a discussion regarding Soviet demands upon Fin- land.

Foreign Minister Elias Erkkö re- turned to Helsinki today and put the finishing touches on a reply that Paasikivi will take to Moscow to- morrow.

The final Russo-Finnish sessions are expected to get under way next Tues- day.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

The Perkasie Chamber of Commerce held its quarterly dinner meeting, Tuesday night, in the parish house of Trinity Lutheran Church, Perkasie, with 36 business and professional men in attendance.

The guest speaker of the evening was Winfield Clearwater, secretary of the Allentown Chamber of Com- merce, who spoke on the work and organization of that group.

Howard Nace, president of the chamber, presided at the business meeting, when several important items were taken up.

Among these was an agreement to co-operate with the Perkasie Lions Club and the Perkasie Rotary Club in the purchase and placing of road signs leading to Perkasie. These signs, carrying the names of the three co- operating organizations, will be placed at the intersection of the Bethlehem pike and Ridge road, and at the inter- section of the Quakertown-Doylestown pike and Hagersville road.

Plans for Christmas decorations for the community were under discussion, and a committee was appointed to look into the possibilities of purchasing a display such as was proposed. This committee is comprised of Paul D. Fretz, Harold Hunsberger, Clarence Alexy, John Mayes and Clayton Pritch- ard.

A committee to list nominees for the annual reorganization at the next meeting, in January, was also appoint- ed. Those on the committee are: W. K. Terry, Charles Wampole and Wil- liam Sine.

Plans were also discussed for the annual meeting with the two service clubs, also to take place in January.

FIREMEN'S RELIEF ASS'NS GET MONEY FROM STATE

A Total of $5,847.67 Paid To Districts in Bucks County

BRISTOL GETS $1,288.32

Auditor General Warren R. Roberts today approved the payment of $920.474.79 from the Foreign Fire Insur- ance Fund to 1,251 municipalities of the State. The entire amount is to be paid to the firemen's relief associa- tions and pension funds in each lo- cality.

A total of $5,847.67 will be paid to districts in Bucks County.

The fund represents the annual tax of two per cent paid by foreign fire insurance companies doing business in Pennsylvania upon premiums paid in each municipality.

In accordance with provisions of the Act of 1933, the payments will be made by Auditor General Roberts to the treasurer of each city, borough and township in which there are firemen's relief associations recognized by the councils, commissioners, or super- visors. The law requires that this Continued on Page Three

Bucky Walters Ready To Hunt Ducks Near Here

Bucky Walters, Cincinnati's ace pitcher and voted the most valuable player in the National League in 1939, came to Bucks County this week and enjoyed gunning at the Penn Manor Club.

Walters was accompanied by Jimmy Wilson, Reds' coach and former man- ager of the Philadelphia National League club. They motored to Penn Manor. He and Wilson spent two hours fixing Walters duck hunting boat moored at the club house. They were preparing for the duck season which opens Monday.

Arranges Party Honoring Girl On Fourth Birthday

Mrs. Thomas Sharp, 1627 Wilson ave- nue, entertained on Thursday after- noon at a surprise party, several little friends of Janice Stalski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stalski, 1524 Wilson avenue, in celebration of the fourth anniversary of her birth.

The children made merry playing games and favor of pins and blue baskets filled with candy were given. The rooms were decorated in pink and blue and refreshments were enjoyed by the tots.

The guests were: Joan Kewer, Edith Wilson, Patty Riley, Phoebe Scheffey, Carl Jobson, Bristol, and Betty Irwin, Milton, Mass.

Janice was the recipient of several gifts.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Another Justice Soon

Washington, Oct. 19. THE chances all are that be- fore the end of his term Mr. Roosevelt will have at least one more ap- pointment to the Supreme Bench. Thus within less than three years he will have made five new Justices, a clear majority of the nine.

BUT even without another man of his choice, control of the court seems in his hands. Certainly, its trend is in the New Deal direction. It is now what Mr. Roosevelt likes to call a "forward-looking" court, but what leading lawyers have de- clared a court which puts a new interpretation upon the Constitution every Monday and whose re- cent decisions have swept away the basic milestones laid down by itself and for nearly a century used for guidance by the legal world.

THIS is the result of the four Roosevelt appointments since the summer of 1937. A fifth, likely to come before long, will not change this situation but it will insure its continuance for a longer period, postpone the time when the court, as some day it is sure to do, re- verses recent radical decisions which reversed previous decisions long held as fundamental. Today, however, the Court is a Roosevelt court and a fifth selection will not make it much more so. It will fur- ther accentuate, however, the stu- pidity of his 1937 effort to pack it. That move cost Mr. Roosevelt the esteem and support of many friendly disposed people. It was his major political blunder.

By Staff Representative

LANGHORNE, Oct. 20.—Serving jointly as hostesses, yesterday after- noon, members of American Legion Auxiliary of Jesse W. Soby Post, Langhorne, and of the Auxiliary of Newtown Post, entertained 150 women from 16 units comprising the Mont- gomery-Bucks Council of American Legion Auxiliaries. The gathering place for this monthly function was the Methodist Church, with the luncheon followed by a program of speeches, reports of officers, and an executive meeting.

Mrs. Roy Smith, Ambler, newly- elected president of the Council, greeted representatives of the follow- ing Auxiliaries: Ambler, Bristol, Col- legeville, Conshohocken, Doylestown, Fort Washington, Langhorne, Lan- sdale, Morrisville, Newtown, North Wales, Norristown, Perkasie, Pot- tstown, Sellersville, Willow Grove; and a formal welcome was extended by the Rev. Walter F. Humphrey, chaplain of Soby Post, and pastor of the church in which the meeting took place.

A hot luncheon, with roast beef as the piece de resistance, was served, in a setting enhanced with Autumn leaves, and gold toned flowers. Favors for the women were miniature cor- sages of blue baby breath and gold chrysanthemums, the Auxiliary colors.

During the course of the luncheon three brief addresses were made. Mrs. Smith introducing Commander of the Ninth District of the American Legion, Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., Bristol; Com- mander Richard A. Hopkins, of Soby Post; and the Rev. Humphrey, chap- lain. In his remarks the clergyman informed the Auxiliary members that, "We cannot callously close our eyes to what is happening in the world to- day. Even if we as a nation remain neutral, we must have certain ideals, and take certain stands. . . . And one sphere in which this organization can Continued on Page Six

PREDICTING BY GADGETS

As the green of the countryside turns under the magic of Fall into brown and red and gold, we are not permitted to forget that football comes next. For the time being, the heralds of the greatest of autumn sports must be content with the inside pages, but within the space allotted to them they are doing themselves proud this year.

Something new is offered to the football world this season by the prognosticators. No longer do the fans have to depend on the predictions or guesswork of the prophets whose names are written high on the scroll of football fame. The newest contest before the actual contest is between mathematicians who have come upon devices which tell the story before it happens.

One of the oracles uses a slide rule, another an intricate difference-by-score rating system, and it is expected that the field will soon be invaded by others with magical and infallible wheels and gadgets. Unhappily, there remain many unbelievers who point out that no two of these "scientific" predictions agree, so it is evident that some of them will be proved wrong. Furthermore, the most highly respected among them already have come a cropper in the opening week of the season.

Past performance is no more certain a guide in football than in a horse race. But there is no denying that the charts and percentages and predictions of the wisecracks make interesting reading under the floor lamp and beside the cozy fireplace these cool October nights.

UNIVERSAL ENQUIRY

"What is going on at the Western Front?" asks the world. "Why this delay in the carnage, this hesitancy in the expected bombing of great cities, this emphasis on reconnaissance, not rushing?"

The world enquires: "Is it because no one wants war in the light of a demonstration of war's hopelessness which never had been given so strongly as in 1914-18? Do the Allies and Germany hold off in deference to Russia's not wholly crystallized position? Do they await definite peace overtures, which in turn await America's decision on her neutrality policy?"

All are wondering if a new order of international relations is found in declared hostilities which are to take on characteristics of an "undeclared" peace.

The Great Game of Politics

BUT none of these things detract from the interest in the next election and it is characteristic of Washington that with a war in Europe and before the vacancy occurs, there should not only be discussion of the men but a number of recognized aspirants. It is always difficult to forecast Mr. Roosevelt's decisions, but if his first four appointments constitute the yardstick by which the fifth is to be measured, the outlook is not cheering. He has made one outstandingly good selection—Justice Frankfurter. No matter how much one may differ with Mr. Frankfurter's point of view, he is recognized as a man of intellect and character, deeply learned in the law.

BUT, it is hard to say that of the other three—and few do. One of them was a mediocre New Deal lawyer, who consistently concurs in the views of the more aggressive New Dealers on the bench.

As to the other two, it imposes a strain upon even the hardest constitution to regard either Mr. Hugo Black, the former Alabama Kluxer, or Mr. William (Call Me Bill) Douglas, as an ornament to the bench. The first was named by the President in a fit of pique at the Senate for refusing to accept his Court Packing bill. He wanted to give it a bad dose which it would have to swallow. It would not have been swallowed had not Mr. Black cunningly concealed his Klan affiliations and permitted Senator Borah to assure the Senate that he never had any.

MR. DOUGLAS was the candidate of the little Corcoran-Cohen group of radicals of which he was—and is—one. It was this group which induced the President to name him and it was from this group the ridiculous publicity about him emanated. The Horatio Alger success story weaved around Mr. Douglas led to his being boomed for the Presidential nomination by inspired New Deal journalists. The boom fell pretty flat but that has not prevented Mr. Douglas from trying to live up to the Lincolnian portrait painted of him. The latest example was upon the occasion of the routine visit of the members of the court to the White House. All the other justices wore the regulation morning coat and silk hat. Mr. Douglas appeared in morning coat but ostentatiously held his old slouch hat where it was conspicuous in the posed picture. Later he told reporters that he does not own a "top hat" and "don't like 'em anyhow."

THIS—and other—similar performances coupled with the fact that Mr. Douglas is frequently reported as recommending people for office—certainly not a judicial function—have created a distaste for him among many who at the time he was chosen were disposed to believe he might gain in dignity and weight despite his lack of legal experience and the character of his promoters. Now that another vacancy looms, those who think it vital that respect for the court be maintained, are apprehensive lest the President pick another of the Black or Douglas type.

IT, of course, is conceded that he will name a New Dealer, but there are New Dealers and New Dealers. For example, should he name Senator Wagner of New York, his confirmation would be immediate and there would be little discontent among conservative Democrats. Senator Wagner, it is true, is the author of one of the most onerous of the New Deal acts, but he is not a radical at heart and he is an able and balanced man. There would be no conservative acceptance, however, should the Presidential choice, as is more likely, fall upon the ambitious Attorney General, Mr. Frank Murphy, or upon one of the more ardent New Deal Senators, such as Minton of Indiana or Schwelmbach of Washington.

NONE of these would elevate the bench, but they would accelerate its trend toward radicalism. The restoration of its equilibrium would be indefinitely postponed. It is interesting that at the moment the little group which put over Mr. Douglas is supporting Mr. Murphy, not because they like him but because that would make almost automatic the promotion of Mr. Robert Jackson to the Attorney Generalship. And that is something they particularly want.

"KNIGHT ERRANT" by Jack McDonald

CHAPTER XXVII

Knight Errant endured with remarkable equine stoicism a trying ordeal as the veterinarian probed with his long forceps, finally locating and withdrawing the sponge. Charlie Bassitt had confessed to secreting in the horse's nostrils months before. Two nights after the operation, Knight Errant came down with a fever.

There was an anxious night, while Heather, Slim and Snapper stood by the horse, awaiting the veterinarian's verdict.

"Infection!" was his diagnosis. "Get him to a high, dry climate at once if you want to save him!"

Recalling an old friend, Pop Logan, who had a small ranch in Arizona, Slim arranged to take the ailing Knight Errant there in a borrowed van. . . . The colt recuperated rapidly and was soon exercising daily on the ranch's quarter-mile track, with the hefty but able Snapper in the saddle.

And so, in virtual hiding, Knight Errant was kept for three weeks in Arizona.

Slim knew at last he had a great race horse, trained to the minute, in the trailer van in back of his roadster as he drove into Santa Anita nine days in advance of the big race.

The problem of getting a good jockey came up one night when Slim exclaimed, "Dimple! Dimple! We'll get him!" Then his enthusiasm died.

"Aw, he's riding at Hialeah. The Colonel won't let him off," Snapper said, gloomily.

"Well," commented Slim, "I'll wire him anyway."

Driving to the telegraph office Slim told Heather he was going to give Knight Errant a final hard race in the San Antonio day after tomorrow to put him on edge for the big race.

"But, Slim, Comanche will surely be entered in that race," Heather protested.

"Good! I hope he is," Slim replied.

"We'll find out how good Comanche is. And how much better Knight Errant is. We have nothing to worry about—nothing at all!"

Hearts quickened in the long line of boxes overhanging the broad sweep of Santa Anita. But none beat faster than Heather's as a re-born Knight Errant, his black coat richer in sleekness than ever before, in the unmistakable glow of health and fitness, marched with his quick, nervous tread down the track to the starting gate.

"A hush, as though it sensed the import of the race this day, fell over the vast throng of 40,000 as sixteen horses—the fittest and fleetest on the grounds—paraded by the stands for the running of the San Antonio at a mile and an eighth.

The San Antonio preceded the Santa Anita by only one week.

Edith Ashleigh was in a box adjoining Heather's. Flushed with pride and confidence in her black knight, she even felt a lenient kindness for Edith.

"Sorry we must be rivals today, Edith," she dimpled. "After all, they're two grand horses—Comanche and Knight Errant—and it's a shame they can't both win."

Edith flashed back, "Let us just say, 'May the better horse win,' with our fingers crossed, and pray for a dead heat," she smiled.

And only the moment before Edith and Heather had spoken so solicitously of each other's horse, Slim Maynard had been down in the saddling paddock telling Knight Errant's rider, "Davey" Jones, in effect, to "knock Comanche for a loop."

"Either that big horse has Knight Errant's number or he hasn't," he told Jones.

"This race will tell the tale. Open up all the daylight you can on Comanche in the early running."

"And when Comanche makes a move at you in the stretch ride Knight Errant out with the whip, to the limit. If we can lick him at a mile and an eighth today we can do it at a mile and a quarter next week."

Slim left the paddock and started for the box to join Heather, hurrying, for the horses were nearing the starting gate.

The field left the gate in perfect alignment and, as usual, Knight Errant's blazing early speed took him to the front. . . . Speed and neck for an eighth of a mile up the stretch, they matched stride for stride, Knight Errant, a neck in front, refusing to surrender an inch of ground to the big horse.

Dolan, crouched low, his head on Comanche's neck, sensed he was beaten. He reined Comanche over toward the rail where Knight Errant was saving ground. In a moment Dolan had Comanche locked against Knight Errant's flanks.

"Comanche! That big tramp! Look at him! He's stealing a free ride on Knight Errant's flanks!"

It was Snapper, growling down by the rail.

Standing 17 hands 4 inches, and towering over Knight Errant, Comanche leaned his 1,300 pounds heavily on Heather's horse.

In spite of the lugging-in tactics of his equine elephant rival which he had once served as a lowly work-horse, Knight Errant shouldered this extra burden and hung on with the courage of a bulldog down the final eighth mile of the grueling distance battle.

They thundered toward the wire. Just a stride from the finish line Knight Errant, his liquid eyes aflame with rage at being shoved around by the bigger horse, turned his head and sank his teeth savagely into Comanche's neck.

The vast crowd roared its disapproval. Nearly half the fans clutched Comanche tickets in their hands.

Because Knight Errant turned his head at the wire the finish was close, and over on the odds-board the word "PHOTO" was flashed in red lights to indicate a picture would be necessary to determine the winner.

Slim was tense.

"There's going to be trouble!" he told Heather instantly after the two horses crossed the wire. And he headed excitedly for the judges' stand.

"What happened?" Heather asked Edith, bewilderedly, as Slim left.

"I believe your horse savaged mine," Edith replied softly, yet accusingly.

Heather was on her feet, flushing with indignation.

"Comanche was the one that started it! He ruined Knight Errant's chance!"

"Chance?" queried Edith softly. As if to say: "What chance would that little trouble maker have against my Comanche in the first place?"

Edith maintained her famous Ashleigh poise, outwardly. She might not have, had she seen what was happening on the track. For Comanche, unseen by his mistress, was the victim of another fit of maniacal fury on Knight Errant's part.

As soon as the two horses were unsaddled in front of the judges' stand, Knight Errant broke loose from his groom and kicked Comanche with both rear feet.

The two jockeys had unsaddled hurriedly and carried their tack to the weighting-in scales. At Dolan's heels was "Davey" Jones, Knight Errant's rider, in a race to be first to get the judges' ears with his version of the crowding and savaging incident.

There was a flurry in the stand, while outside fans were howling for a disqualification, though no two persons seemed to have the same version of just what happened.

The camera had shown Knight Errant winner by a comfortable nose. But over the loud speaker came the judges' decision:

"Your attention, please. The stewards have ordered Knight Errant and Comanche both disqualified for fouls and placed them last in the order of finish."

The crowd moaned gustily.

"Boy, what a day for a stooper!"

Snapper said, gleefully, edging up to Slim.

Snappers was speaking in the race track vernacular. Stoopers go around spotting cashable mutual tickets thrown away by careless bettors.

"A stooper's paradise, I call it!" Snapper reiterated as he spotted a good ticket beneath him and put his foot over it, looking around warily.

But Slim was not heeding Snapper. He was silently rejoicing over Knight Errant at last running back to his ancestry. He was the better horse of the two, as the race was run today.

But You Can't "PLUG" A Can of TOMATOES!

Did you ever "plug" a watermelon? If so, what did that little upside-down pyramid mean when you cut it out of the melon's rind? It meant protection. With it, you could make sure you were getting what you were paying for—a good, ripe watermelon.

In most purchases, of course, you can't take that precaution. You can't, for example, cut into a can of tomatoes -- or a box of tapioca -- to see what's inside. But you can still protect yourself when you go to market:

You can buy familiar, advertised brands!

When you buy the things advertised in this newspaper, you are buying dependable goods. They've got to be what they claim to be in order to appear here. You'll find them as represented—and you won't have to "plug" them!

flowers and the latter mountain climbing and riding horseback on the trails. All of the pictures were beautifully colored, many of them having been taken on the ranch which Mrs. Reed owns in Wyoming.

Mr. Chew, a representative of a well-known railroad company, showed sound pictures of Sun Valley, Idaho. Another picture taken in Sun Valley showed mountain scenes.

During the business session the members were informed that Indoor Garden Day will be observed in a well-known business house in Jenkintown on November 15. There will be speakers and a display of fruits, flowers and vegetables. Miss Ruth Smith, Merchantville, N. J., was appointed to represent the local association at this show.

Mrs. Louis Traub, exhibition chairman of the recent flower show, thanked her committees for their co-operation in making this one of the best exhibits ever held by the society.

Arrangements of Fall flowers and specimen blooms were exhibited at the meeting. In the first class, Mrs. E. C. Phelps took first prize; Miss Helen Vaughn, second, and Mrs. Funk, third. The first place winner in the second class was Charles Randall, Sidney Tuckey, Bustleton, was second, and Robert Tuckey, also of Bustleton, was third. Judges were Mrs. Rupert Smith, Bryn Athyn; Miss Anne Wurster, Philadelphia, and Miss Ruth Smith, Merchantville, N. J. The prizes were furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Clark, Jenkintown. Fifteen attendance prizes, which included plants, were also awarded.

The next meeting of the society will take place on Tuesday evening, November 21st.

ance department which was recently established in the local schools is working out very satisfactorily. Occupations, he said vary greatly, and a recent survey made in this borough revealed that its residents are following at least 100 different occupations. Only about three per cent of the high school graduates, said Mr. Fox, attend college and because of this these young people must find positions. Mr. Fox declared that there are many opportunities for high school graduates in industrial concerns, and usually they are successful because the heads of the firms find they can train them better for the work than the college graduates.

The guidance department, it was said by Mr. Fox, is interested in the development of hobbies among the boys and the girls. Guidance, it was also said, should be specific and it should develop in the child the ability to guide itself. It must give the child hope and prepare it to get a job and then to keep that job.

Another speaker at the meeting, which was in charge of the president, Mrs. William Morlok, was Dr. Charles Morris, a child psychologist at Woods School, Langhorne, who spoke of the work with the problem child. He cited several instances of problem children and explained how, after they had undergone the proper preparation, they were able to take their places with other children in the classes.

Group singing at the opening of the meeting was directed by Miss Mildred Pearson. This was followed by committee reports, and Mrs. John C. Goodnoe, chairman of the membership committee, stated that the association now has enrolled 65 members.

Mrs. Morlok gave an interesting account of the convention of the Southeastern District of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers held in Reading last Friday and Saturday. She described one of the new high schools in Reading which, she said, is one of the best she has ever seen.

Supervising Principal A. Kurtz King gave a report of school activities, commenting especially on the football and hockey teams, both of which have been making excellent showings. A large number of books and magazines, said Mr. King, have been purchased for the school library. The new departments and the new teachers, he said, are doing good work. Mr. King also spoke of the home economics department, members of which recently served a luncheon when the high school principals held a meeting here.

Members were informed that the next meeting of the association will be held Monday evening, November 20.

Inaugurates New Home Service Bureau!

The new Home service Bureau is designed to give consumers a friendly home counselor. It will include a Radio Broadcast which will begin Tuesday, October 17th, at 8:45 a. m., over WCAU.

The new service will be under the direction of Miss Elsie Carol, noted Food Economist, former director of W. C. A. U.'s Women's Club of the Air.

It is a modern service for consumers, bringing to them the latest and best methods of buying, preparing and serving foods, suggestions for planning attractive menus and saving on the budget without sacrificing either quality or enjoyment—a service which will keep the home purchasing agent posted on new products, market supplies and quotations and give counsel on homemaking problems in general. This Bureau will be to the Consumer a friend at court to receive suggestions and adjust complaints, if any it will provide, along with their present laboratory facilities and technical tests, expert buyers testing of food products, the added protection of practical kitchen tests.

Miss Carol and her assistants will have access to, and the cooperation of, all departments of the Company in order that she will be placed in a position to render the home makers a valuable service. The Bureau will be located at the Main Office of the Company, 424 N. 19th street, Phila., where a modern kitchen, broadcasting studio and public auditorium is being installed. Radio programs will be presented three times each week: Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, from 8:45 A. M. to 9 A. M.

This program is designed and arranged to bring to the attention of the home makers of Philadelphia and vicinity a vast amount of important information that they could obtain in no other way and which will be of material advantage to them.

The Company states that, to their knowledge, this is the first time in this area that a Home Economist of National Reputation has been placed in a position as a representative of the consumer in order to render them a service not heretofore provided.

WEST STEWARTSTOWN, N. H.—(INS)—Sudden circulation of large, old style gold certificates and greenbacks revealed that two laborers who razed an old barn belonging to the Connecticut River Valley Company had uncovered a cache of $1,300. The old bills were stuffed into old tobacco tins and concealed in the building.

BRISTOL THEATRE

A lusty, roaring, thrill-laden tale of adventure in Civil War days is "The Arizona Kid." Republic Roy Rogers film today at the Bristol Theatre.

There is music for the ears, drama for the heart, and thrills to tingle the veins in "The Arizona Kid," which briefly depicts Roy's tracking down McBride, a notorious, vicious bandit, who is protected by innocent people because his charm blinds them to his devilry.

The Civil War is engagingly woven into the screenplay, a fine product from the pens of Laci Ward and Jack Natteford.

THREE BEDROOMS AND LARGE LIVING ROOM

THIS roomy, two-story home accommodates with equal facility either a small or a large family.

On the first floor, the living room, 12'6" x 23', includes a large open fireplace and runs the full length of the house. The three sleeping rooms, one a master bedroom 12'8" x 14'10", have cross-ventilation.

If an additional bedroom is desired, the pitched roof on the porch can be removed and a screened enclosed sleeping room built over it. The porch itself could easily be extended the entire length of the house if more "outdoor" space is needed.

Note the small den at the rear of the first floor and the pleasing contrast given the exterior by the stone work at the right of the entrance.

BENSALEM ELEVEN MEETS NEWTOWN IN GRID SCRAP TODAY

Two School Teams Will Fight It Out at Cornwells Heights

RED SKINS - PEMBERTON

Morrisville Plays N. J. Deaf School and Bristol Plays At Trenton

With three Lower Bucks schools on the Jersey rivals in their tradition of inter-state clashes this week-end the local grid state offers some interesting games. But, despite these Penn-Jersey scraps, the fray that again tops the headline among schools in this vicinity will take place right in Bucks county's own back yard.

The tilt is that scheduled between two conference foes at Cornwells Heights, where the Bensalem Owls will tangle with the Newtown Indians in a return game this afternoon. The same day the Langhorne Redskins in quest of their initial triumph will match wits with Pemberton High at Pemberton. Other games list Morrisville and Bristol opposing New Jersey schools tomorrow afternoon. The Bulldogs will open their home season against the New Jersey School for the Deaf, while the Cardinals will go to the State Capital of Jersey, there to take on Trenton Catholic High at Dunn Field.

ROHM & HAAS CLIMBS INTO LEAD OF LEAGUE

R & H finally got into first place last night by taking all four games from Barton's. By getting beat all four games last night Barton's dropped from first place. Fred Stewart enabled R & H to take all four games by bowling a score of 528. The main reason why R & H. is in first place is because every man in most hits 500 for 3 games. Kendig bowled 524 for Barton's.

Burlington is starting to climb in the American League by winning all four games from the B. B. C. team. Schroeder lead the Burs attack with a high score of 538.

By virtue of winning three out of their four games J. A. C. remained in second place in the American League. Campbell lead the J. A. C. attack with a score of 542. Smiling Robinson was high for Asco with an average of 531.

Tonight the Industrial League bowls. Here's hope that Coffey's team through and keep on fighting to win. AMERICAN LEAGUE

SOUTHAMPTON TIES RICHBORO AT SOCCER

RICHBORO, Oct. 20.—With first place in the Lower Bucks Soccer League at stake, coach Claude Lodge's Southampton Greyhounds battled George Lindsay's Richboro combination to a 2-2 stalemate here this afternoon. And so at the close of the day's activities, the two clubs were still tied for the top rung of the ladder.

The other tilt scheduled to be played at New Hope between the Hoppers and the Buccaneers of Buckingham was postponed indefinitely because of infantile paralysis forcing the closing of New Hope's schools. Buckingham's team was on hand at today's battle in Richboro.

Goals: Heaton 2, Daniels, Freeman
Assists: R. B. White, Referee: Edwards

is ours—that of being good American citizens."

Commander Hopkins told of the one outstanding thing which each soldier learned during service in the United States Army—Loyalty. Stressing the need for loyalty on the part of each and every American citizen to his country, Mr. Hopkins, in reference to certain camps in this nation which have an un-American flavor, said: "We don't want to tolerate any type of un-American activities."

That the biggest year in the history of the American Legion and Auxiliary is looked for as regards various activities was the thought expressed by Ninth district commander, Mr. Schmidt. He touched on several subjects, mentioning that Gettysburg College has been secured rent-free during the Summer for the Keystone Girls' Camp, sponsored by the Auxiliary, with the Legion aiding. He expressed pride that in the ninth district several appointments to state offices or chairmanships had been made. Mr. Schmidt extended for the Quakertown post commander an invitation for all to participate in the memorial service in Quakertown high school on November 5th. He mentioned resolutions passed in regard to the German Bund camp "Deutschert" near Quakertown, and the activity of the American Legion in trying to stem any alleged un-American activities. "The Legion is on the job. You can rest assured that we are doing all in our power and although it might seem slow, we are doing it in an orderly and true American fashion." The Armistice celebration in Bristol to be sponsored by Robert W. Bracken Post No. 382, was mentioned, 46 bugle corps to be in line.

A brief executive committee meeting followed the luncheon, prior to the main session.

The guests were greeted on this occasion by president of the Langhorne Auxiliary, Mrs. Ernest Robinson, and president of Newtown Auxiliary, Mrs. James A. Dawson, the heads of the hostess Auxiliaries being accompanied to the meeting by a large number of their co-members. Mrs. Warren Randall was in charge of luncheon arrangements.

A message of work carried out and needs of the veterans' hospital at Perry Point, Md., was brought by Mrs. George Croner, Yeadon, past Council president, and who has been appointed by the Pennsylvania state auxiliary group as chairman of the committee for that hospital. Mrs. Croner informed that 400 of the 1400 patients at Perry Point are Pennsylvania men. "And some of them feel that they are forgotten men," she added as she told of the need for more attendants in the hospital in order that the patients might be properly cared for. A visit made by her to the Institution on Wednesday, when hundreds of pounds of candy were distributed, was recounted. "Perry Point hospital needs your help and needs it badly," she added, but stated she did not want to take gifts which Auxiliaries previously made to other hospitals. Urging to greater activity, in order to fill the needs, she mentioned that candy, cigarettes, playing cards, and many other things will make life happier for the men. "The State Department gives each man from Pennsylvania a sweater at Christmas time, but the other little gifts mean so much too." The Council promised to donate crepe paper for Christmas decorations at the hospital.

Another speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. John McGill, Whitmarsh, the Eastern director of Pennsylvania. She informed that the Montgomery-Bucks Council has received within its ranks six state Auxiliary appointments. Membership was considered.

Mrs. McGill promising a personal prize to each membership chairman who receives a national citation. "On membership depends the success of our program," she continued.

The cultural vacation to be provided through the Keystone Girls Camp at Gettysburg College during the Summer was mentioned by Mrs. McGill, who advised the units to send outstanding girls to the camp, inasmuch as this work comes under the heading of Americanism and not child welfare.

Serving as pianist during advance of colors, and for the singing of the national anthem by the group was Mrs. Gilbert Bonnell. Prayer was offered by Mrs. David Schoenly, Norristown, council chaplain; with secretary's and treasurer's reports being presented by Mrs. George Kelly, Morrisville, and Mrs. Norman Green, Conshohocken, respectively.

During reports of committee heads, Mrs. A. P. Cardamone, Conshohocken news letter chairman, announced a personal prize of $2.50 to the unit securing the most subscriptions to the news letter by January 19th. Mrs. Melvin James, Gwynedd Valley, stated that the November meeting place will be announced later. Unit activities reports for the past year were presented by representatives of Lansdale and Fort Washington Auxiliaries. Mrs. Abel Frankfield, Lansdale, coupon chairman, told of hopes to raise $1,000 through coupons, to be used to send girls to the Keystone camp. The Americanism chairman, Mrs. P. L. Haldeman, Willow Grove, presented a brief but interesting report, stressing the importance of Americanism activities in the individual organizations.

The pre-lect, Mrs. Smith, and the secretary, Mrs. Kelly, told of the sessions of the Presidents and Secretaries Conference held recently in Harrisburg.

Those affiliated with Auxiliary of Robert W. Bracken Post, Bristol, who were in attendance at the luncheon meeting were: President, Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr.; Mrs. Robert Clark, Sr.; Mrs. Benjamin Ahart, Mrs. Marvel Durham, Mrs. Benjamin Lesseig, Mrs. Robert Downing, Mrs. Harold H. Deltmer, Mrs. Henry Elmer, Mrs. Joseph Mucklow, Mrs. Walter Strouse, and Mrs. Elizabeth Delker.
